YOUR STEP-BY-STEP GUIDE

to obtaining a real estate license

STEP 1:

Complete Your 180-Hour Required Education

Before you can qualify to take the Texas Real Estate Salesperson Exam, you must complete 180 hours of specified education. These 180 hours must include:

- 30 hours in Principles of Real Estate I (#121)
- 30 hours in Principles of Real Estate II (#122)
- 30 hours in Real Estate Law of Agency (#1151)
- 30 hours in Real Estate Law of Contracts (#1251)
- 30 hours of Promulgated Forms (#351)
- 30 hours in Real Estate Finance (#451)

We offer these courses individually or as a part of our discounted licensing packages, shown on page 5.

STEP 2:

Consider Obtaining a Sponsoring Broker

In order to practice as a real estate salesperson, you must be sponsored by a licensed Texas real estate broker. You and your sponsor will both need to complete and submit the Sponsorship Form. Once the form is accepted by TREC, your license will be issued and you may practice real estate under the sponsorship of the broker. However, you may take all of your education, apply for a license, and even receive an inactive real estate salesperson license without a sponsoring broker.

STEP 3:

Apply and Submit Forms and Fees to TREC

After completing the required 180 hours of licensing education, submit to TREC all education documents and real estate school certificates.

STEP 4:

Schedule Your Licensing Exam and Fingerprinting

After you receive your response letter from TREC approving and directing you to the Candidate Information Brochure, you can schedule your exam with Pearson VUE. You will also receive direction on how to submit your fingerprints for review. You have one year from the date your application is filed to pass the examination. The telephone number for Pearson VUE is 800.997.1248.

STEP 5:

Prepare For the Exam

Rely on us for the most current and comprehensive exam prep.

STEP 6:

Take the Exam

Once you have passed the state exam and your fingerprints are on file, you will receive an Active or Inactive Salesperson License delivered via email from TREC.
